The tour starts at the Salzbach car park (P3-P5) and follows the stream, the Leutascher Ache. Cycle past the Gaistalalm and Tillfussalm to the Seebenalm. The last few kilometres to the crystal-clear Seebensee are steep and the path is gravelly. Continue uphill on foot to the Coburgerhütte where another natural gem awaits, the Drachensee.

GAISTAL VALLEY IN WINTER

Winter in the Gaistal offers wonderful views, a variety of winter walks and a choice of natural toboggan runs (bring your own toboggan). Warm yourself up and enjoy some refreshment at the Wettersteinhütte, the Hämmoosalm, the Gaistalalm or the Rauthhütte, all of which are open in winter.

For detailed information about tobogganing and winter walks, see the winter walking map or online under: www.seefeld.com/en/winter

Leutasch

FROM LEUTASCH TO THE
GAISTAL VALLEY – A
PASTURE PARADISE

www.seefeld.com

The picturesque Gaistal Valley stretches westwards from Klamm in Oberleutasch through the alpine landscape between the Mieminger and Wetterstein mountain chains. There are lots of hiking and bike options to suit all tastes and abilities, from a gentle tour along the meadows and the river, the Leutascher Ache, to a demanding summit tour or a visit to one of the high-lying alm huts. Whichever you choose, you will have fantastic scenery and wonderful views all around. Some refreshment is a must after a day out and there are plenty of alm huts in the Gaistal where you can enjoy a cool drink and some tasty food before heading back. This brochure describes a few of the tours.
